B., youngest son of the first Marquis of Stafford. The first earl was sometime Secretary of State for War, and was successively Ambassador to Ruksia, Holland and France. He was created Viscount Granville in 1815, and Baron Leveson and Earl Granville in 1833. His wife, Henricita Elizabeth Cavendish, was the daughter of the fifth Duke of Devonshire. The second earl was educated at Eton and at Christ Church, Oxford University, taking his degree in 1834. In 1835, when

SCHOOLBOYS AND HAD FUN. Colleges and college life were in the background at the dinner of the Phillips Academy Alumni, held last evening at the Hotel Brunswick. The thoughts of the sts went back of the time when they were "college men" at Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Amherst or Williams, to the earlier years when they ran with the Phillips fire-engine, played tricks on the "theologs" or firted with the pretty "Fem Sems" of the Abbott Academy for Young Ladies. "After all," in the words of a gray-headed Phillipian, "we had our best fun were boys at school."

After an hour of pleasant chat a line was formed. and led by Dr. Bancroft, principal of the Academy, Charles H. Woodruff, the toast-master of the evening, the company marched into the dining-room their seats after grace was said by the Rev Dr. S. B. Willis, of the class of '30. At each place was a catalogue of the Academy and the menu card, a treasure in the sight of any Andover Upon its face appeared the old stone academy building, familiar to the older graduates. were a number of etchings showing Andover of to day, and at the back the portraits of the principals of the school for a century past, grouped about that one who made the school what it is, and whose name is on the lips of hundreds who knew and loved him-Dr.

Samuel H. Taylor. Before the regular speaking began, E. B. Convers, chairman of the committee on organization, submittee the constitution of "The Association of the Alumni and Students of Phillips Academy, Andover," which was adopted by a vote of those present. The following ers for 1891-'92 were also proposed and elected President, Charles H. Woodruff; vice-presidents, Ros well Smith, E. B. Convers, Nathaniel Niles and Oliver H. Payne; secretary, Henry M. Love; treasurer, Arthur B. Graves; executive committee, Luther W. erson, Oliver Drake Smith, William Talcott, John G.

Gopsill and Julius H. Seymour. Principal C. F. P. Bancroft, of the Academy, was the first speaker. He spoke of the past history of the school, its honorable record, the present needs and promise for the future. The Academy has now 370 school, its maintains. The Academy has now 370 promise for the future. The Academy has now 370 students and last year sefit more than 100 boys to colleges and scientific schools throughout the country. The Rev. Dr. George D. Wildes, president of the Phillips Exeter Alimmi Association, spoke for the sister school in New-Hampshire: President Franklin Carter, of Williams College, for "The Alimmi"; the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Hall, on "Education of Young Men," and Alphens H. Hardy, of Boston, for "The Trustees." Other informal speeches were made.

Dr. Oilver Wendell Holmes sent a telegram of regret, and letters and messages were received from many more. Among those present were Dr. Horace Kimball, of the class of 1816; Henry Grew, of '21. Br. Egbert Gnernsey, Nathaniel Niles, Professor George D. Petice, of Andover: Arthur B. Graves, John G. Gopsill, Gilman H. Tucker, Horace E. Deming, Peter B. Olney, the Rev. G. F. Flichtner, S. B. NOT THE AUTHOR OF "THE BREADWINNERS" The following dispatch from Chicago appeared in The Tribune yesterday:

e Tribune yesternay:
"In the course of a talk on literary style before a Methodist Ministers' Association of this city, the
v. Dr. Mendenshall, of Cleveland, set at rest the oted question of the authorship of 'The Breadmers' by announcing himself as that man."

Either the Rev. Dr. Mendenshall has been incorrectly reported or he has made a serious mistake; for i happens that he is not the author of ,"The Breadwinners." Mr. J. Henry Harper, of Harper & Brothers declares that the Doctor is not the man; and nobody could be a better authority on the subject than Mr

A report was published yesterday to the effect that Mrs. R. L. Stuart was to give a dinner last evening at her beautiful home on Fifth-ave, and Sixty-eighth-st. at which the Rev. Dr. John Hall was to be the guest of honor. Upon inquiry at the house vesterday after noon Mrs. Stuart, who is an invalid, said that no dinner was to take place.

MRS. RIVES GETS HER TRUNKS.

Mrs. Francis R. Rives. jr., called at the Custom House yesterday and satisfied Deputy Collector Dudley of the Law Division that her trunk, which was seized on Saturday when she arrived here from Europe, contained only her personal property. Rives was extremely pleasant over the affair, although her experience must have been most unpleasant She said that the inspector who examined her cemed to labor under the impression that she was a dressmaker and was trying to smuggle purchases into the port. Mrs. Rives told the officer who she was, but he was not satisfied and hundered by seizing the trunk. Colonel Phelps released Mrs. Rives's property, she had only a few dutiable articles of trivial value, the duty amounting to several dollars, and some of these goods were not hers.

DEATH OF MISS EMMA C. MAYO.

Miss Emma Carrington Mayo, a niece by marriage of General Winfield Scott, and a member of one of the leading families of the South, died yesterday, at Elizabeth, N. J. after a few days' illness, from pneumonia She was about forty-eight years old, and years agwas a leader in Elizabeth society. She had lately de voted herself entirely to charitable work and religiou enterprises. She was a devout Episcopalian, and as conducting the weekly religious services held at the Union County Jail. Some years ago Miss Mayo had her coffin made. The matter got into the newspapers, and, it was said, she refused to accept the coffin. Miss Mayo was related to the Mayo family of Richmond, Va.

THOMAS C. PLATT GIVES A DINNER.

Thomas C. Platt, the president of the United States Express Company, was the host at a private dinner given last evening in the Fifth Avenue Hotel to representatives of other express componies and to railroad men. There is, of course, plenty of "go" in the business of transportation, and there is lots of good fellowship as well. The good-fellowship has been promoted by several social re-unions like that which took place last night, which was the United States Express Company's "return dinner" to the Adams, which had a dinner in Delmonico's.

the company presided over by Mr. Platt were ey M. Depew, John Hoey, Colonel J. J. McCook, Channesy M. Depew, John Hoey, Colonel J. J. McCook, E. M. Morsman, Waldo Adams, W. J. Hancock, H. B. Platt, Charles Fargo, E. M. Wright, J. G. A. Herring, John M. Fraser, Charles G. Clark, C. Spooner, J. C. Fargo, Austin Corbin, H. Sanford, C. F. Topping, L. C. Weir, T. F. Wood, L. W. Winchester, W. a picture more or less emblematic of the various branches of the express service in the country. The decorations were superb, there was a profusion of beautiful flowers and the artistic accompaniments of the dinner were only surpassed by the sparking and witty speeches made by Mr. Depew and others.

MR. BOOTH NOT TO ACT NEXT SEASON.

HE HAS DECIDED TO REST FOR A TIME-A TOUR

OF TWENTY WEEKS CANCELLED. It was definitely announced yesterday that Edwin Rooth would not act next season and that all the time held for him in various cities had been or would be cancelled. His manager, Theodore Bromley, said last night that Mr. Booth had instructed him to cancel all his engagements for next season, as he intended to rest and recuperate. Mr. Bromley added: Mr. Booth has worked hard and travelled a good ical within the last four or five years, and he feels he is now entitled to a rest. He has been much affected by the death of Lawrence Barrett, and probhis decision. We never book forward for longer than one season, and of course that is all that has been cancelled. It is certain, I think, that Mr. Booth will reappear on the stage after his much-needed rest."

A friend of the actor also said: "He is guided greatly by the wishes of his daughter. Some time ago he promised her that he would not play twice in one day, and has thus spared himself especial strain. It is her wish that he should not appear upon the stage next season, and he will respect it."

A season of twenty weeks had been arranged for next autumn and winter. The tour included New-York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Pittsburg. The time reserved in Brooklyn has been cancelled already, but at Palmer's Theatre, where the New-York engagement was to be played, it was said last night that no notice had been received that the time would not be filled. It has been said that Mr. Booth's decision not to play next season would mean his permanent retirement from the stage, but it is authoritatively announced that this is no part of his present intention. He is playing this week, the last of his present season, at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn. He gave "The Merchant of Venice" last night, and will appear for the last time on Saturday afternoon in "Hamlet."

FOR A UNIFORM PITCH.

A COMMITTEE OF SEVEN APPOINTED BY THE PIANO MANUFACTURERS.

The annual meeting of the Piano Manufacturers Association was held in Delmonico's yesterday afternoon, and was followed by a dinner in the evening. A. D. Wheelock, president of the association, presided at the business meeting, which was almost entirely devoted to the discussion of the question of adopting a uniform pitch for all planes. The principal speakers am Steinway, Ernest Knabe, William T. Miller and Levi K. Fuller. The general opinion ex pressed was that it would be of great benefit to the reade and to musicians in general if all pianos and other instruments were tuned to a certain standard of

There was a long discussion in regard to the pitch to be adopted, and at last the following committee seven was appointed to investigate and report at the monthly meeting of the association in May: Steinway, H. ### SUMNER, THE COURTS ARE AWEARY.

THE GREAT IDENTIFIER AGAIN ARRESTED-HE IS CHARGED WITH SUBORNATION.

corpses, is again in trouble with the police authorities Late yesterday afternoon Detective-Sergeants "Phil' Reilly and Von Gerichten, of Inspector Byrnes's staff, arrested Mr. Sumner at his office, No. 198 Broadway on a charge of subornation of perjury.

Eearly yesterday afternoon a young man who gave his name as Cuthbert R. Saffery, of No. 46 West one hundredth-st., called on Inspector Byrnes and told a story which if established may put Mr. Sumner in ar extremely tight box. He said that Sumner, whom he had known for a considerable time, had approached him on the subject of the identification of "Fred Evans," the Astor House suicide, as George H. Edgar. Sumner, he said, had offered him a large sum of money if he would swear that Evans was Edgar. He had had several conferences with Sumner both before and since the opening of the second inquest in the Evans case, and it was arranged between them that the testimony should be given at the adjourned hearing of the case before Coroner Levy to-day . Ac cording to Saffery's statement, Sumner brought lodgings some clothes and a traveiling bag which he (Saffery), was to identify as George H. Edgar's property There were also letters and papers which Mr. Saffery was to swear to as being in the handwriting of George

After hearing the story the Inspector told Mr Saffery to go down to the police court and embody his statement in an affidavit. This instruction he obeyed. When the affidavit had been sworn to, Eeilly and Von Gerichten, who ere attached to the District-Attorney's office, acting on Inspector Byrnes's instructions, applied for a warrant for Mr. Sumner's arrest. Mr. Sumner warrant for Mr. Sumner's arrest. Mr. Sumner ved them with his usual bland smile, and, as or ous occasions, denounced his arrest. previous occasions, denounced his arrest as an outrage, but was finally prevailed on to accompany the detectives to Police Headquarters, where he was locked up for the night. This morning he will be brought up for examination at the Tombs Police Court.

Mr. Saftery could not be seen last night at his home, and his wife professed to know nothing about the case.

ENJOYING THEIR ANNUAL DINNER.

The annual dinner of the Alumni Association of the Episcopal Academy of Connecticut was eaten at Delmonico's last evening. Plates were laid for more than fifty guests who recalled with raptures men of fair Cheshire. After the cigars had been lighted, C. La Rue Munson, president of the association, made the opening address of the evening. He was followed by the Rev. Dr. J. S. Horton, who spoke of the centennial celebration of the Academy in 1894. The Rev. E. S. Lines, of New-Haven, retold the history of the well-known school. Dr. H. Holbrook Cartis, of this city, praised the Alumni Association, while James B. Dill addressed himself to the future of the cademy. The programme of regular speeches "The Alumni Scholarship ended with a talk upon Fund" by the Rev. E. I. Sandford.

Among others present were C. M. Goddard, the Rev. Frederick Sexton, Dr. George C. F. Williams, Professor A. W. Phillips, Dr. W. K. Simpson, Charles Wisner, Rowand A. Robbins, C. B. Hawley, William C. THE RHODE ISLAND ELECTION.

REPUBLICANS CONFIDENT THAT THEY WILL GAIN THE LEGISLATURE AND THAT THE PEOPLE WILL FAIL TO ELECT

STATE OFFICERS. Providence, R. I., March 31 (Special).-The night before election does not bring much change in the situation from that presented in this correspondence on Monday. SHALL THE MUSEUM BE OPEN TO ON SUNDAY? The Commonwealth Club held their monthly meeting last night at Morello's, No. 4 West Twenty-ninth-st. The subject under discussion after dinner was: "Shall the Present System of Closing the Metropolitan Museum of Art on Sundays be continued !" General W. S. Logan was in the chair and introduced the Rev. W. W. Atterbury, was in the chair and introduced the opening of the muscum on Sunday. He said this view had been upheld by Archbishop Corrigan, Bishop Potter and the Rev. Dr.

of the museum on Sunday afternoons was a thing greatly to be desired, helping the artisan to see, on his one holiday of the week, that which could not fail to make him better. in ending his speech he said: "Art is the sister of religion. It appeals to what is best and noble in man." Dorman B. Eaton was strongly in favor of a Sunday opening, and he was backed up in his arguments by Jacob D. Miller, another lawyer, who falled to see why an institution that was good to look on for six days should injurious on the seventh.

The spirit of the meeting seemed strongly in fav. the Sunday opening. Among those present were Carl Schurz, Jacob Miller, Heary Rice, R. W. G. Willing, Hamston Bell, Leonard E. Opdyke and W. A. Gordon, of Boston.

REDUCED COMMUTATION RATES on the Naw-York Central take effect April 1. But the Whigs were defeated in the year of Lord Granville's appointment and he, of course, ceased to be onnected with the Government.

In 1849 Lord Granville succeeded to his father's titles, and on the return of the Whigs to power in the same year he was for a time content with the office of Master of the Buckhounds. In 1848 Lord John Russell appointed him vice-president of the Board of Trade. The appointment was criticised at the time by Mr. Bright and others as an unseemly piece epotism (for Lord Granville was a descendant of Lord John Russell's grandmother), but by his knowledge and industry Lord Granville soon secured the good-will of those who had doubted the judiciousness of his appointment, for in this, as in all the offices he ever ful filled, be displayed shrewd sense, impartiality and readiness to listen, and he was always careful to make himself thoroughly master of the details of every meas are he took in hand. Lord Granville was one of the leading promoters of the great Exhibition of 1851, and one of the most active members of its committee of management, and the business of the Exhibition made preciated his good sense and vigorous understanding. When, in consequence of the dismissal of Lord Palmerston after the French coup d'état at the end of 1851, the Foreign Secretaryship was vacant, Lord Granville was intrusted with the duties of this important office. The downfall of Lord John Russell's Government having speedily followed Lord Palmerston's separation from his collengues, Lord Granville had little opportunity at this time of directing the foreign policy of England, and when Lord Derby was defeated at the end of the year 1852, in which he took office, Lord Granville did not return to the Foreign Office. In 1853, after serving as Master of the Buckhounds, Paymaster-General, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Treasurer of the Navy, Lord Granville wes appointed President of the Council, a place which he held until he assumed the leadership of the Liberal party in the House of Lords, in 1855. In 1856 he was sent as Ambassador Extraordhary on a special mission to Russia on coronation of Alexander II, and he golden opinions by his frank bearing and unfalling tact in the conduct of this important and, considering the period, somewhat difficult mission. In 1858 Lord Derby returned to power, and when he was defeated at the general election of 1859, the Queen sent for Lord Granville and requested him to form an administration. She proposed that Lord John Russell and Lord Palmerston should be invited to take office and Lord Palmerston should be invited to take office under him. To this proposal Lord Palmerston gave a ready compliance, but Lord John Russell, though ready to serve under Lord Palmerston, was not willing to take office under Lord Granville, a man so much younger and less experienced than himself, and accordingly Lord Palmerston once more became First Lord of the Treasury, with Lord John Russell as Foreign Sectory and Lord Granville at his old post of Lord President of the Council. In this office Lord Granville directed some of the most important changes in the National system of popular education. He was also chairman of the committee for the Exhibition of 1802, and as the Prince of Wales was absent, he took the piace that would have been occupied by him at the imagural festival.

On the death of Lord Palmerston, in 18°5, Ear Russell became Pretaier for the second time, but Lord Granville did not cease to be Lord President until 1806. In 1808 he became Colonial Secretary in Glad stone's Cabinet. Though he was only two year at the Colonial Office, Lord Granville effected momentus clanges in the relations between the mother country and her colonial dependencies. While he was Colonial Secretary it fell to the lot of Lord Granville, as leader of the House of Lords, to introduce and defend Mr. Gladstone's Irish Church Bill in the upper house, and his moderation and contresy, his discrimination and tact, were never exercised to such good purpose as during the memorable session which witnessed the passing of this act. On the death of Lord Clarendon, in 1870, Lord Granville succeeded him as Foreign Secretary, and for the remaining four years of Mr. Gladstone's administration he continued to hold that important office. Soon after he became Foreign Secretary the Franco-Prussian war broke out. His policy at this time won the confidence of England. In emphatic language Germany and Franco were told that Great Britain would insist on the in violability of Belgium, but it was ready to offer its good offices on both sides in favor of peace, and while on the one hand Lord Granville resisted the frantic clamor of the writers and orators who wished England to send troops to help the French, he did not hesitate to remind the conquerors of the mischief that night arise from pressing their advantages too far and too severety.

While the Conservatives were in power under Lord Beaconsfield, Lord Granville acted as the Liberal leader during Gladstone's temporary retirement. In 1880 he resumed the post of Foreign Secretary, under Mr. Gladstone. In 1885 Lord Salisbury eame into power, and for a year Lord Granville was out of office. In 1886 he became Colonial Secretary under Mr. Gladstone, and lee held this place until Lord Salisbury's return to power, in 1887. Since the split in the Liberal party on the Irish question, he had been one of Mr. Gladstone's most powerful supporters.

Lord Granville was one of the most popular noblemen in England. He was frank and geneous, a liberal patron of art and letters, and a zealous advocate of the extension of elementary and higher education. He was for many years Chancellor of the University of London, and in 1883 Oxford gave him the degree of D. C. L. His titles will go to Granville George Leveson-Gower, his eldest son, who was born on March 4, 1872. Lord Granville's first wife died in 1880. His second wife survives him, with two sons and two daughters.

CHARLES HOWE FORD. Charles Howe Ford, of this city, died at Redondo

Beach, Cal., on March 30, after a lingering illness, Mr. Ford was born in Fairport, N. Y., on July 31, 1837. His family removed to Fox Lake, Wis., in his carly boyhood. There he grew to manhood. On the breaking out of the war he enlisted as second lieutenant in the 10th Wisconsin Regiment, and he was promoted to the rank of captala in April, 1863, for gallant services. He served in the First Division of the Fourteenth Corps, Army of the Ohio, Department of the Cumberland, under General George H. Thomas, until registered out of the service in De-cember, 1864. After the war he served for a time as private secretary to Governor Fairchild. Soon afterward he entered the fire insurance business. In 1872 he was a member of the Chicago firm of Critchell & Ford, agents of the Phenix Insurance Company, of Brooklyn, for the Western States. In 1874 he came to New-York and was appointed assistant general agent of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, then a very influential organization. Later he was United States manager of the North German Fire Insurance Company, of Germany, and superintendent of agencies for the London and Provincial Company. On the retirement of the latter company he became a member of the insurance firm of Mills & Ford. On the death of Mr. Mills, in 1859, the firm name was changed to Ford, Rowell & Hone. Mr. Ford was also president of the Chronicle Company, limited. He was a member of the Union League Club, the St. Nicholas Society, the Down Town Club, Loyal Legion and many other organizations. COLONEL ALBERT S. FOLLANSBEE.

Chicago March 31.—Colonel Albert S. Follansbee, who had been in business here since the war, died to-day from an attack of the grip. He was captain of Company C of the 6th Ma sachusetts Regiment at the time four companies of that regiment were attacked by a mob in Baltimore, while on the way to Washington at the outbreak of the war. As the four companies marched through the streets his company led the column.

ROBERT H. WATERMAN.

Albany, March 31 (Special).—Robert H. Waterman, who for years was engaged in the corpet business here, died te-day at the age of sixty-nine years. He was born in Albany. The only public office he ever held was that of City Chamberlain. Mr. Waterman took an active part in Free Masoney, having had the thirty-third degree conferred upon

ALBON PLATT MAN.

Albon Platt Man, one of the cldest and best known members of the bar of this city, died at his home, No. 166 East 25crtieth-st., on Monday afternoon, in his eighty-first year. His death was caused by exhaustion, following an attack of the "grip," complicated with pleurisy.

Mr. Man was born at Constable, Franklin County, N. Y., on January 18, 1811. His father was Albon Man. Mr. Man was educated in the common schools of Constable, Platteburg and Fort Covington. At the age of nineteen he entered the law office of Judge Parkhurst, of Platteburg, as a student, and remained there two years. He then came to this city and studied in the office of Judge William Kent, a brother of Chancellor Kent. There he was associated with Benjamin D. Silijman, of Brooklyn, and Colonel Thomas B. Stoddard, who afterward came Governor of Minnesota.

Mr. Man was admitted to the bar in Poughkeepsie in 1832, and he immediately entered into partnership with Stephen C. Williams, with offices at No. 56 Wall-st. He continued to practise law within a few feet of the place where he first made his headquarters, for sixty years. After the retirement of Mr. Williams, Mr. Man formed a partner-ship with Waiter Edwards, under the firm name of Edwards & Man. In 1863 Mr. Edwards retired and the firm of Man & Parsons was formed and continued until May 1, 1884. (f) that date Mr. Parsons withdrew and Mr. Man took his two sons, William and Henry S., into partnership with him, this partnership continuing up to the time of Mr. Man's death. Mr. Man retired from active court practice in 1856 and devoted himself to the business of solicitor and the care of estates. He was the attorney for Peter Lorillard, Catharine Woife, Daniel E. Edgar, Lorillard Spencer and many other well-known people. In the interest of his clients he was principally responsible for the defeat of several underground railroad schemes, mainly the Arcade System. He was an expert at drawing wills, deeds and similar instruments. He drew the famous assignment of Graydon, McCreery & Company, which was hotly fought to the Court of Appeals and upheld in every particular by that tribunal. Mr. Man was one of the earliest members of tribunal. Mr. Man was one of the earliest members of the Union League Club, being connected with that organi-zation prior to its incorporation in 1803. He was vice-president of the Bar Association for several years, was a member of the Board of Education for a long period, and an active member of the Madison Square Presbyterian

The latter, seven sons and one daughter survive him. The funeral will be held at the Maction Square Presbyterian Church at 10 a. m. to-morrow, the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst conducting the services.

MRS. ELIZA MEARNS GREENE.

Mrs. Eliza Mearns Greene, who died recently at Manalapan, N. J., was the widow of the Rev. Dr. Abijah E. Greene, and the daughter of the late Alexander and Catherine Mearns, of Highland Falls, N. Y. Early in life she united with the First Presbyterian Church of Highland Falls, and she was always a devoted member and faithful worker in her own church. Three years ago she removed with her family to Manalapan. Though living such a short time in her new home, she had gained the love and esteem of the community.
